Community College Okayed

The State Board of Education has approved preliminary steps to establish two new community colleges in Northern Lower Michigan.

THE BOARD Wednesday approved applications from Clare and Gladwin counties for one of the colleges and from Crawford, Roscommon, Oscoda and Ogemaw counties for the other. The action gave needed state permission to hold local elections in the two areas on forming community college districts.

No election date was proposed for the Crawford-Roscommon-Oscoda-Ogemaw school. The application was filed by the single intermediate school district that is made up by the counties.

Board President Thomas J. Brennan said the board, before giving its approval, carefully studied anticipated enrollments, geographical areas of the proposed districts in terms of population growth and concentration, possible infringements on other community college districts, or exclusions of territory that might be left out in a state plan for community college districting, and proposed budgets and tax ability for local support.

The Crawford-Roscommon-Oscoda-Ogemaw application anticipated an enrollment of about 450 full-time students in five years. It proposed a 1 mill levy for operation and capital outlay.

Community colleges are supported financially by state and local tax monies, grants, federal and otherwise, and student tuitions and fees.

Trustees would be elected at the balloting establishing the district. "Both areas are in real need of community college facilities and both are in excellent geographic positions to fit into state plans to provide such colleges to serve every area of Michigan," Brennan said.

Beaver Creek Township Businesses View Expressway Projected Plans

Three Beaver Creek investors in business have objected to the Michigan State Highway proposed plans for the intersecting of projected I-75 expressway with the US-27 expressway near the Big Wheel location on old US-27 without provisions for a exit of any kind.

As it was explained, a full interchange was planned on US-27 at the Military Road and there would be no other north until the Four Mile Road was reached. Also on projected I-75, an interchange is proposed just a bit north of the Village of Roscommon and the next one to the north would be Four Mile Road.

Roy DeWitt, owner of the structure housing the Big Wheel Restaurant and Service Station, Ralph Morse, owner of Skyline Ski Club and Stanley Berry, owner of the Pineaire Motel joined in protesting to the Highway Department over the plans.

The trio dispatched the following letter to Lansing, including plans drawn by Mr. DeWitt which would solve the dilemma at no extra cost to the Department:

Highway Department

Lansing, Michigan
Gentlemen:

Because of interests we have at the Big Wheel and Sky Line area, we believe that it would be a regrettable mistake, service-wise, and an economical injustice to the businesses that are already in existence, and the future growth and economics of the community, and Crawford County, to build the projected I-75 expressway as plans now show with no exit.

A drawing is enclosed which we hope you will find some merit to. It is an idea, and from plans we have seen of the proposed highway, we believe it has advantages in eliminating confusion, giving

New I-75 Construction Report is Approved

LANSING — The State Highway Department has approved an engineering report for construction of a section of Interstate Route 75 from West Branch north to US-27.

The thirty-four-mile project in Ogemaw, Roscommon and Crawford counties will cost an estimated $18 million.

It will be constructed as part of the Interstate highway system and will serve as the final link of I-75 from the Michigan-Ohio border to Sault Ste. Marie by way of Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Grayling, Gaylord, St. Ignace and Mackinaw City.

Location of the route as a portion of the national system of interstate and defense highways was planned to provide maximum transportation service for the population centers affected. It has also been located to offer maximum access to the already existing system of state highways.

The proposed construction will facilitate access to Houghton Lake, Roscommon and West Branch areas through a series of five interchanges located at M-76, Maple Valley, M-18, M-18-M-76, and at US-27.

The carpeting is now in place and the book shelves have been moved, thanks to the Camp LaVictoire boys. Dedication is temporarily set for August 1st. All memorials received by August 1st will be on the memorial plaque at this dedication.

There is still work to be done in placing 8 thousand books in the proper shelves. Your help will be appreciated on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1 to 4 p.m. until the library opens.

At a recent meeting of the Friends it was decided to hold monthly meetings on the 3rd Tuesday at 8 p.m. Plan now to join the Friends of the Library and help enrich your life and others in the community.

Nearly 6,000 Michigan National Guardsmen will wind up two weeks of strenuous training tomorrow when equipment and material is loaded on vehicles in preparation for departure Saturday.

The encampment, possibly the last for the 18-year-old 46th Division, will be recorded as one of the finest in history, according to division officers.

Gov. George Romney, commander-in-chief of the Michigan National Guard, was at Camp Grayling Sunday for the annual division review and memorial service.

The governor reviewed the entire division Sunday morning and presented awards to the outstanding soldier and the outstanding unit.

This year's winner of the Stewart Medal was 1st Sgt. Richard S. Bennett of Co. B, 1st Bn. 126th Inf. of Ionia. Top unit in the guard again this year was Battery A, 1st Mst Bn of the 177th Artillery, Detroit.

THE GOVERNOR arrived in camp Saturday and ate morning and noon chow Sunday with selected Guard units.

Nearly 2,500 civilians viewed the review on the parade field. Guardsmen's wives and relatives streamed into Grayling during the weekend for the colorful pageant.

This week the guardsmen concluded their training with spectacular combined arms operations at the Sand Lake artillery range.

Infantry rifle companies were supported in an attack on an aggressor position by live fire from 105-howitzers and Navy-Skyhawk jet fighters.

The jets, from Glenview Naval Air Station in Chicago, attacked simulated tanks with rockets and 20-millimeter cannons.

THE PLANES, piloted by Navy reservists, flew here from the Chicago station in about 12 minutes.

Six combined arms training operations were held on six different days. The last performance, held today, was witnessed by press, television and radio representatives from throughout the state.

Lt. General C. G. Dodge, commander of the Fifth Army, visited the post Tuesday for an all day tour of the training operation.

Dodge viewed units in the field on training problems with live ammunition. In the afternoon he was on hand as a Pontiac rifle company ran through the combined arms training.

THE ENTIRE division vacated the garrison area early Monday morning and left for four days of bivouac in the heavily wooded military reservation.

During the week the troops slept in pup tents under simulated combat conditions.

Aggressor forces were used to harass the guardsmen as they undertook field problems both during the day and at night.

Problems during the night included tactical motor marches to bivouac areas throughout the reservation.

Eighty-percent of the guardsmen will leave the camp Saturday morning. Troop convoys will begin leaving the area before dawn and continue throughout the early morning.

About 2,000 tankers and other personnel who arrived in camp last Saturday will remain here one more week.

Mrs. Ruth Confer had a recent unfortunate experience when as a favor she signed as reference for a neighbor who had decided to represent a product in this area, and when the neighbor defaulted on paying for these products she was selling, the company for whom she had been working came back on Mrs. Confer for payment. Mrs. Confer was forced to pay, even though the company knew all along where the lady who had sold the products lived. Mrs. Confer makes the point "just be more careful if you are asked to sign a paper to help someone out."

The Rustic Motel on Old 27 north now has 16 units, some remodeled and some completely new. Walt Allington is the contractor who has been doing the work for the owner, Don Welsch, since January. The office building at the motel was completely burned in December of last year.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

The parade is over, and Tim is hot, dusty, and his feet hurt. This was his first parade, and somehow it didn't come off as he thought. He didn't expect to be the whole show, but he did think he and his tuba would stand out a little. As it happened, he was just "one of the band."

Later, he will realize that if each player weren't just "one of the band" there wouldn't be any band at all. He'll start thinking from there, and the parade will seem a lot better in memory than it does right now. For Tim has a good sense of value, for a boy his age—thanks in part, to the teachings of his church and church school.

Tim will weather his disappointments and march successfully through life, instead of giving up. Will your youngsters be as lucky?

Give your children the chance to go to church school.

A Matter Of Hands . . .

What one hand giveth, another hand taketh away.
That is often the case with taxes.

The Washington publicists see to it that all-out notice is given to tax reductions. But it's a different story with tax increases. As little as possible is officially said of them.

Take, for instance, the social security tax. From the time the system got under way in 1937 until 1949, the maximum was $30 a year each on employee and employer. Under existing law, it is scheduled to reach $222 on each of the payers in 1968.

However, a pending bill, which includes the dubious medicare program, would shoot it up farther and faster. By 1987, each employee earning $6,600 or more a year would have to pay $369.60 and his employer would match it, for a total of $739.20.

That isn't the end to the tax story. The states have been joining in the act, with new or increased sales, income and other such taxes.

So, to repeat, what one hand giveth, another hand taketh away.

JULY 23, 1942

Miss June Doroh, daughter of Mrs. Marjorie Doroh, and Lawrence Cady, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Cady, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Congregational church at Luzerne by Rev. Nicholas of Roscommon. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moore of Pontiac, sister and brother-in-law of the groom. After the ceremony the wedding party came to Grayling for a wedding supper at the home of the bride's mother. The young couple will make their home in Pontiac as Mr. Cady is employed at the Willow Run bomber plant in Ypsilanti.

An amusing thing occurred when a group of trucks missed the turn off M-72 onto M-93 and were nearly to Kalkaska when the leader realized something was wrong. They met a woman who told them to follow her and she led them right into the camp and told officers "here's your lost battalion."

A year ago Mr. and Mrs. America were scouring cellars and attics for old aluminum items. Last month they were hunting down old rubber gadgets. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following letter is from Rhea Stripe to her parents, Grayling School Superintendent and Mrs. Joseph Stripe. Rhea is spending the summer in Spain on the Youth for Understanding program.

Dear Mom and Dad,

This is not an actual day by day account because it's already Thursday and I haven't written anything yet. The plane trip over was nice but sort of tiring. We stopped in Buffalo for about half an hour and most everybody got out to stretch his legs. There were two seats on one side and three on the other, and they were close together! If you put the back of your seat down you were right in somebody's lap! We stopped in Gander, Newfoundland, for about two hours. It was about one o'clock in the morning (Gander time) when we left and the sun was coming up. We had two meals on the plane and they weren't very good, but they were something to keep us going. Yesterday we passed over Ireland without stopping at Shannon as we had first planned. Ireland from the air is beautiful! The ground is quite green and all divided into little plots. Near the coast you can see the ocean and the land. It is interesting to look at the shape of the coastline and to see the little bays. Rivers are really pretty, winding so gracefully along. We flew over the Isle of Man and then over England. We didn't stop in London, either, but flew directly on to Amsterdam. My first impression of Holland was great.

We came in by bus from the airport into Amsterdam. Of course a lot of people ride bicycles, and along the main highways are bicycle paths, and next to them are walking paths. Traffic here goes helter-skelter but nobody ever seems to get hurt. The streets in the city are quite narrow and are made of brick. They're rather difficult to walk on. We came to the Hotel Flissig, which is very near downtown. The room we have is very nice; it has a small washbasin, a wardrobe, two single beds and another pull-down bed. The bathrooms are either upstairs or downstairs, and they contain a toilet and a washbasin. They make no distinction between men's and women's (because there is only one) so you have to be careful to lock the door when you go in. There is one shower two floors up from us with lukewarm water to cool water. Amsterdam is really interesting. It isn't very pretty because it's awfully dirty, but it certainly is interesting. The streets are made of bricks and are only about 12 feet wide. It's crazy when two cars meet; they barely have room enough to squeeze by — that is, if one goes up on the sidewalk. The sidewalks are proportionally small and very hard to walk on. They're so uneven it's easy to twist an ankle. Most people ride bikes, though.

The boys in Amsterdam wear their hair so long! It's sort of hard to tell the boys from the girls. Carol and I went downtown after supper and we saw a gang on the street corner. The boys had such long hair we didn't know who was who because there were girls in the gang too. We stood on the other corner and just watched them. We've seen some gang members scribbled on the walls, too.

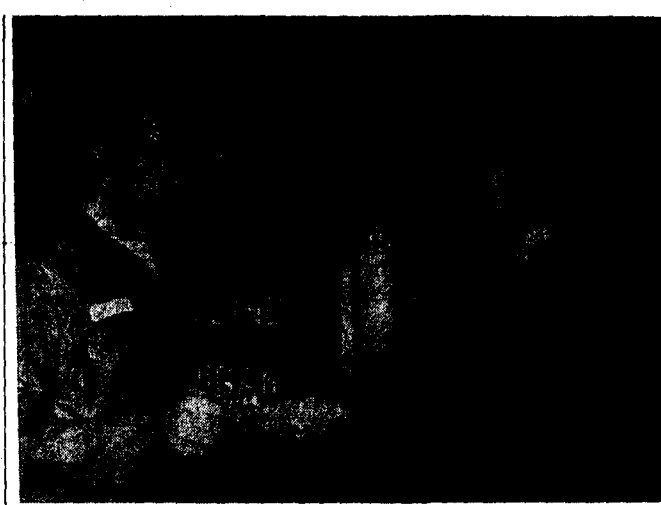

You would really be surprised at the beauty of the countryside, compared to the crowdedness and dinginess of the city. Carol, Yula, and I went to the travel bureau and got a tour of the surrounding countryside. Four hours of tour for ten guilders — $2.70. We took a bus and went through beautiful farmland. They have a lot of dairy cows and raise a lot of hay to feed them all through the winter. The fields are real green. We took the bus across the harbor on a ferry. There was a Dutch and English speaking guide so it was very interesting. He showed us the Tower of Tears where the women used to go when their husbands went off to sea, and he quipped: "Now they cry when they come home!" Then we took a boat trip across to the Island Marken, which is really a tourist spot, but very beautiful. On the boat we were entertained by a Dutchman playing an accordion. It was amusing to note the songs he played: "Anchors Aweigh, The Band Played On, A Bicycle Built for Two, Take Me Out to the Ball Game". On the island we saw people dressed up in old fashioned clothes right down to the wooden shoes (for some, but not all; I don't imagine they're very comfortable for very long). We went into one woman's house and I was amazed. It looked like an overcrowded gift shop, but I guess it was authentic. The lady was real nice, and a colorful character. From Marken we went to another small town on the mainland, which was also very touristy, but seemed a little more authentic. There were a lot of fish boats there, indicating that they make their livelihood by more than just the tourist business. Mother, you just can't imagine the beautiful curtains they have here until you see them. They look like a very fine organdy, but on the edges is most beautiful lace you've ever seen! They have a lot of cafe curtains and valances, which show off the lace to the best advantage. They are all snowy white and starched and crisp. Then we went on through the country and I saw the factory where they make Edam cheese. I could have sent you a ball of it for $3.00. Just imagine — we can get it at home for $1.30! We saw one of the large dykes near Amsterdam; it was a large mound of earth, that's all. It was rather picturesque, though, with green grass and daisies growing on it. After we got back from our little trip (we missed lunch at the hotel) we went to see Anne Frank's house and then just went walking. The canals are dirty but pretty with trees lining them all along.

Friday morning: We got up early in order to have breakfast by 8 o'clock. The meals are very good, but I like breakfasts best. We have rolls or bread, several kinds of meat sliced thin so you can make a sandwich of it. With this there is butter and jam and coffee or milk. This doesn't sound very different, but the bread and milk make it. The pastries are delicious. The milk is not pasteurized or homogenized or something but it tastes fine. Sort of different but fine.

After breakfast we went to the bank, and then to the station where we boarded the train. We were in second class compartments and they were nicer than I expected. There were eight in a compartment and three others and I got in with two girls from the Netherlands, a man from Spain, and a boy from Tennessee who is over here with the army. Going through the country I saw several windmills. I hadn't seen one in Amsterdam as there is only one around there and I had missed it. They make a very picturesque view with the farmland and the cows. I didn't see too many flowers. Matt and Kathy and I were talking to the man from Spain in a jumbled up mixture of Spanish, English and Dutch. We had a wonderful time. The man had several magazines, among them, "Blanco y Negro" which we were reading.

We finally arrived in Paris and had to take taxis from one station to another. The traffic in Paris is terrific. It is nerve wracking, to say the least. Our driver could speak only a little English and we could speak only a little French. Everything went along fine, however. We took some other roads around and missed seeing the Eiffel Tower (To be Continued Next Week)

Indiana National Guard Brigade's outstanding soldier, Private First Class Alex Yovanovich, left, received an engraved lighter from Carroll West, right, president of the Crawford County Chamber of Commerce. The Indiana Guardsman along with a Puerto Rican Sergeant was honored at a special luncheon held during the encampment of the two Brigades at Camp Grayling last month.

This summer, we can make the living even easier.

Because now natural gas service is available to many summer homes in the Cheboygan area. That means you can enjoy the convenience of gas for cooking. For heating, hot water, and drying clothes. For getting rid of garbage and trash. For lighting your lawn. And even for air conditioning.

When you have natural gas service, you can say good-bye to bottled gas cylinders, fuel storage tanks, and delivery trucks. And you never have to wonder whether you have enough fuel on hand. Gas will always be there to serve you. Always be there to bring city convenience to your summer home. And you can have this service for as little as $21.00 per year minimum bill.

Sound good? Then give us a call or stop in to make arrangements for natural gas service at your summer home. We're at 206 James, Grayling, phone 348-6581 (if it's a toll call, call collect). Ask about our Seasonal General Service Rate. It will save you plenty on fuel bills. Making that easy living even more enjoyable.
